

Competition

“Health and safety in small enterprises – the keys to success: examples of good practice”

Rules

The promoters of the “keys to success” organize an international competition around small and medium-sized enterprises which want to demonstrate and communicate their successful efforts for the promotion of health and safety at work.

The target of this competition is to collect and make available a large number of good practice examples.

Ten recommendations to make a company successful....

- Healthy companies need healthy workers
- Better act than react
- Show active commitment as the owner/manager
- Engage everyone
- Good working conditions pay
- Inform all persons concerned
- Communicate internally with each other
- Learn from workplace incidents
- Eliminate hazards/risks at the source
- Keep abreast of the changes

You will find further information regarding the “keys to success” in the flyer “health and safety in small enterprises - the keys to success” elaborated by prevention experts from different countries.

What kind of good practices?

The selection criteria for participating in the competition are:

- positive illustration of one or more keys to success as described in the flyer
- the “transferable character” of the example to other enterprises or to other fields of activity/branches

How will the competition be operated?

- The enterprises willing to participate describe their examples of good practice by means of the enclosed form; they add at most two illustrations (photos, drawings, diagrams) which are explained by a short text.
- These examples will be put on a website to which the organizers and their partners set links in order to make these examples more visible.
- From selected examples winners will be drawn. Remark: It is planned that the first prize is an invitation to the next ISSA-World Congress, September 2011 in Istanbul could be one of the prizes.

Engagement of the participating enterprises

The enterprises participating in the competition give the organizers the right to refer to and reproduce all or part of the examples which have been transmitted for non-profit communication in order to promote health and safety at work.

Rights of the participating enterprises

The enterprises have the right to demand a modification or a withdrawal of the elements put on the internet. This has to be done in written form to the same address to which they have sent their participation form